Stalled WTC building to receive $1.7B in funding

Manhattan. The infusion of cash will help complete the last of the World Trade Center buildings.

A New York state development agency has approved up to $1.78 billion in funding for the completion of the stalled 3 World Trade Center building in lower Manhattan.

The New York Liberty Development Corp approved the funding at a board meeting on Monday. The mandate includes over $1.6 billion in tax-exempt Liberty and Recovery Zone Bonds.

we are taking another step forward in rebuilding it for the future," said Gov. Andrew Cuomo. This funding is crucial to keeping the construction and development of 3 World Trade Center on track."

It was not clear exactly when the bonds will be sold.

Three World Trade Center is scheduled for completion in 2018 and will be 80 stories. It will include 58 office floors with 2.5 million square feet of office space.

According to Cuomo, the bonds are the largest approved for rebuilding at the World Trade Center. METRO, REUTERS

MTA unveils new overnight map

The MTA has updated an overnight map that outlines service changes between midnight and 6 a.m.

The fourth version of the "popular guide" shows changes in services, including lines that generally run express but stop on the local track overnight, and information on night shuttle trains and buses that travel to local airports.

The most significant change is the N and R train route through the Montague Tunnel, which was closed for repairs for more than a year, and re-opened last month.

According to the MTA, the maps have become collectors' items since being first introduced in 2012. The current issue includes a Maya Angelou poem, "Awaking in New York," and artwork by William Low, "A Day in Parkchester."

The MTA has printed

100,000 of the latest maps, which are available in subway stations and on the Staten Island Railway.

"Our system is the only major subway system in the world that operates 24 hours a day, but the map that most customers are familiar with doesn't show how our service operates during a crucial part of the day," said New York City Transit President Carmen Bianco.

Woman hit, killed by B train early Monday

A woman was reportedly hit and killed by a southbound B train on Monday morning in the 7th Avenue/53rd Street station, authorities said.

MTA spokesman Kevin Ortiz said that several witnesses at the scene saw the woman walk out in front of the oncoming train around 10 a.m.

B train service was suspended for about an hour in both directions during the morning commute, Ortiz said.

The NYPD is investigating the death.

Bloomberg made honorary UK knight

Former mayor Michael Bloomberg can add one more title to his list: knight.

On Monday, Queen Elizabeth II made him an Honorary Knight of the British Empire for his entrepreneurial and philanthropic endeavors. Bloomberg's European headquarters is based in London as is his charity.

Shortly before the end of his last term as mayor, Bloomberg renewed a tourism partnership between New York City and London.

Bloomberg said that he has long considered Britain his second home.

"I am deeply honored to receive this recognition, which is especially meaningful to me because of my close personal, business, and philanthropic ties to London and Britain, which stretch back four decades," he said. METRO

Young black bear found dead in Central Park

The body of a black bear cub was found in the bushes of Central Park on Monday morning and police have launched a criminal investigation into the death, park officials said.

Black bear cub / GETTY IMAGES

An early morning dog-walker spotted the lifeless young bear near an exit of the park leading to the Upper West Side and alerted a Central Park Conservancy worker, spokeswoman Elizabeth Kaledin said. "We are distraught and alarmed any time wildlife is injured," Kaledin said on behalf of the conservancy.

It's not clear how the animal ended up in the park, which does not keep black bears at its zoo, or how it died, Kaledin said.

Foul play is suspected in the case, Kaledin added.

She referred any additional questions about the case to the New York Police Department. REUTERS

Beacons will be removed from city phone booths

Manhattan. The devices could reportedly track smartphone information from people passing by.

according to the mayor's office, though signals can be picked up by apps. When activated, the beacons could push content to nearby phones if users had Bluetooth on and allowed a third-party app to do so.

"While the beacons Titan installed in some of its phones for testing purposes are incapable of receiving or collecting any personally identifiable information, we have asked Titan to remove them from their phones. The beacons will be removed over the coming days," said mayor's office spokesman Phil Walzak in a statement.

A little more than a day after an investigative piece revealed "beacons" in New York City phone booths could track smartphone information and push advertisements to passersby, the mayor's office announced Monday afternoon the devices would be removed "over the coming days."

On Sunday, BuzzFeed reported that Titan, a media company that specializes in reaching "people in transit," had installed 500 beacons in phone booths across the city, for "maintenance purposes," without the public knowing. The beacons, made by Gimbal, have been installed in phone booths but were not collecting phone data,

The New York Civil Liberties Union executive director Donna Lieberman said, "Having a cell phone isn't an invitation for corporations to track and monitor your every move," and that the technology raises "major privacy concerns" for New Yorkers.

Public, private partnership

According to city records through the city's Department of Information Technology and Telecommunications, Titan has been a "public pay telephone franchisee" since 2001 and an "approved media representative."

- In 2012, the company was part of a pilot program that provided free WiFi through telephone booths, according to a media release.

What are your two jobs?

During the day, I work in the medical billing field, so I call patients to collect funds. After work and on the weekends, I work on a charity I founded with my sisters, Expecting Relief. We formed this organization to help parents and children who are homeless or in shelters by meeting their basic needs so they can focus on finding a home and getting a job.

How does it work?

We collect clothing donations, wash the clothes and then distribute them to shelters.

Do you hold events?

We do. This year we had a children's fashion show and a Shop My Closet event, which both went really well. With the money we get from these fundraisers, we throw events for people in need.

Yes. When you purchase a T-shirt for yourself you are also purchasing one for a child in need.

What is your next event?

I am starting a service called On The Go Boxes, which launches October 26 and will be a personal birthday gift to myself. Every month I will be putting together boxes (along with volunteers) containing food, drinks and snacks for people who call the streets their home.

*For the Apple Bank BONUS Savings account, interest earned on daily balances of $2,500 or more at these tiers: $2,500-$24,999: .10% Annual Percentage Yield (APY), $25,000 and up: .75% APY. There is no interest paid on balances of $0-$2,499. APYs disclosed effective as of July 1, 2014. APYs may be changed at any time at the Bank's discretion. There is a minimum of $2,500 required to open the Apple Bank BONUS Savings account. $2,500 minimum daily balance is required to avoid $10 monthly maintenance fee. Fees may reduce earnings. Funds used to open this account cannot be from an existing Apple Bank account. Maximum deposit amount is $1,000,000 per household. **Special bonus feature: A .25% simple interest rate bonus will be paid on each anniversary date of account opening on the lowest balance for that year (anniversary date to anniversary date). No bonus is paid if the account balance is less than $2,500 on the anniversary date. Additional deposits during a given anniversary period do not affect the bonus interest payment. Deposits made to the account on any anniversary date will be used to calculate the lowest account balance for the next anniversary period. The bonus interest is calculated on the lowest balance on deposit from one anniversary date to the next anniversary date. Simple interest rate bonus is subject to change at any time after first anniversary date of account opening. Hypothetical example of how bonus works: Assume an account is opened on July 1, 2014 for $50,000. A $10,000 withdrawal is made on February 15, 2015. No other withdrawals are made prior to the July 1, 2015 anniversary date. The low balance is now $40,000, so $100 in bonus interest will be paid on July 1, 2015.

Characteristics of successful people

My top goal as a stock trader was to make as much money as possible, and now my top priority as a teacher is to create successful students. I've already made several million dollars and now have several millionaires under my belt, but success is much more than just financial earnings. Here are three characteristics that, I find, successful people possess:

#1: Dedication

No matter what your goals are, to be truly successful you must dedicate yourself to your craft and understand that achievement is a result of hard work and perseverance. Do not fear failure or mistakes. Everything you do wrong is one step closer to you achieving your goals because you'll then know what not to do.

Far too many people expect overnight success and for the vast majority, that's not how it works. Be patient.

#2: Having the right plan

Unfortunately, hard work and determination are not enough to guarantee success in this world; you must be on the right path and ideally also have the right plan to increase your odds of getting to where you want to be. It's OK to pivot from your original plan or even start all over with a new strategy, but I've met too many 9-to-5ers who work their butts off getting nowhere in life because they're slaving away, working hard for someone else's dreams.

If you love the 9-to-5 world, that's great, but don't deprioritize your passion and dreams and get stuck in the daily bustle of just trying to make enough money to get by in life.

#3: Ambition

Next, I wanted to become a hedge fund manager, and I checked that off at age 23. I became a best-selling author at age 26 and in 2007, my new goal was to create millionaire students from scratch. Now with three millionaire students in the bucket, I want to create many more millionaires. Every single day I work with my overall goal in mind. It's a good way to live. Dream big.

The New War in Syria. The Old War in Iraq. Where does it end? ISIS, Iran, Russia, China, our enemies are on the move. What other threats are brewing unbeknownst to America. We are sitting on a powder keg that has experts predicting gold at $2,000 per oz this year! $5,000 gold is becoming a conservative estimate. Ask for a free report titled "China's Gold and Why it Should Matter to Us" to read about why many market makers believe China is hoarding gold in an attempt to instate the "Gold Standard" and remove the U.S. Dollar from its current position as the world's primary reserve currency. As China's economy surpasses the United States' economy, this theory becomes more and more possible. We believe that if China even attempts to overthrow the U.S. Dollar, gold will go north of $5,000 per oz. At $5,000 per oz, each coin in this offer will sell for $540! In this scenario, your investment would grow from $1,340 to $5,400. $50,000 invested would be worth close to $200,000!

The United States Mint is devoted to the production of beautiful coins, guaranteeing precious metals investors' satisfaction. Made from some of the finest gold in the world, U.S. gold coins are stricken at the highest, possible quality and begin as 99.99 percent pure gold bars. Each coin is weighed and measured to precision, and each bears an intricate design representative of the American story. From the production of the gorgeous, antique $20 Saint-Gaudens to that of the modern, gold American Eagles in this offer, the United States Mint upholds a standard of excellence across the decades. To own a U.S. gold coin is to own, not only some of the finest, purest gold in the world, but also a piece of American heritage.

We will ship discretely to your home or office. You must call now to reserve your coins as supplies are limited. This is a first come, first serve offer. There is a strict limit of 10 coins per household. Special arrangements will be made for gold investors seeking quantities of $50,000 or more.

Website subtly suggests, 'Hey, Blake Lively is pregnant!'

Blake Lively is pregnant, and she announced it, kind of, by hawking maternity wear on her lifestyle website, Preserve. Instead of officially acknowledging that Lively is expecting in any direct manner, the site instead includes a photo of the former "Gossip Girl" star cradling her baby bump along with a lengthy explanation of how the fledgling online outlet has been missing out on a lucrative market segment. "We have something for men, for women, for the old, but we realized we don't have anything for the new," the Preserve editors write. "With family on our mind, we looked to the origin of it all — to the women in our lives who are right there, at that special moment; the creation of family." Naturally, the two items Lively is wearing in the photo are available for sale on the site.

This will be the first baby (and baby clothing marketing tool) for Lively and husband, Ryan Reynolds, who met while filming "The Green Lantern" and married in 2011. As the site's lengthy post says, "Congratulations to all the expecting mothers out there." We can only assume that includes Lively. Now, can someone point out which products on the site are "for the old"? We were looking for shots of Reynolds with pants pulled up to his nips and a frumpy house coat, leaning on a custom-made walker, but at press time the site was down due to high traffic.

Imagine if Blake Lively had just been hitting the Schlitz a little too hard this summer? She never actually said she's preggers. / ERIC LIVELY

People still stalk Keanu Reeves?

Keanu Reeves hopefully won't have to worry about Kerry Colen Raus, the woman who was caught trespassing at his home last month — for a little while, at least. The "Matrix" star has received a temporary restraining order against her, according to TMZ. The temporary order could be extended after a review hearing on Oct. 22. Raus was arrested in September after she took a dip in Reeves' pool followed by a shower in his house. She is currently in a psychiatric facility.

While we're on the subject of pregnancy

Got your attention with that headline and photo of these two, didn't we? Anyway, nothing has changed here, it's just that Justin Theroux really doesn't appreciate all the pressure everyone's putting on him and Jennifer Aniston to tie the knot and have a family. While he tells Australia's TV Week that he couldn't be happier "personally and professionally," the nagging from the press is getting a bit much. "I am not going to let a tabloid tell me what to do," he says. "We're completely happy, obviously, but we're not on anyone else's time frame." Well, if you guys change your minds, Blake Lively has some really lovely baby clothes and maternity wear to sell you.

Breaking the bad 'Breaking Bad' silence

"Breaking Bad" fans, rejoice. While the show's upcoming spin-off, "Better Call Saul," doesn't premiere until February, AMC is whetting appetites with a delightful country music video tribute to the series and its titular crooked strip mall lawyer, Saul Goodman (played by Bob Odenkirk). The song, performed by Junior Brown, chronicles the many pickles Saul's clients may find themselves in and the video shows a few frames of the new show.

Reintroducing 'The Flash'

New shows. The speedy DC Comics superhero gets his own show.

For Grant Gustin, winning the role of Barry Allen/The Flash was a bit like getting struck by lightning and becoming the fastest man in the world: a life-changing event that placed him in the spotlight.

"This is my favorite character I've ever gotten to play thus far in my young career," says Gustin, who had recurring roles on "90210" and "Glee." "I'm having the time of my life."

Gustin and the crew behind The CW's "The Flash" aren't new to this arena. Gustin was introduced — and well-received — as Barry in Season 2 of "Arrow," the network's series about the adventures of that DC character. Still, the hype wouldn't matter if the show and didn't stand on its own. It's a good thing Barry is so likable.

"He's just so endearing. He's so sweet. He's curious," Gustin says of his forensic scientist-turned-crime-fighter character. "He's a nerd ... and now he's a superhero. Now he has these powers and he can use them to help other people. There aren't that many better characters out there to play."

Casting

Finding 'The Flash'

Though "The Flash" exists in the same world as "Arrow," the producers of both series didn't want to simply replicate their other superhero hit. And a major part of accomplishing that meant finding the right leading man. Says executive producer Andrew Kreisberg: "Grant was literally the first person to read for Barry. And after that, it was sort of over."

Music. Rapper Big K.R.I.T. swears he doesn't diss his colleagues

From atop "Mt. Olympus," Big K.R.I.T. has spoken, and he ain't happy.

On K.R.I.T.'s "Mt. Olympus," an advance single from his upcoming Def Jam album "Cadillactica," the Southern rapper addresses the supposed diss by Kendrick Lamar on the Big Sean track "Control."

Lamar took swipes at rappers K.R.I.T., Drake, Wale, Pusha T, Meek Mills and others on the track, which is essentially a throne grab.

Yet, "it wasn't a diss," says K.R.I.T. of "Control." "Hip-hop is competitive. ... It's a hip-hop record at the end of the day, and some people view the song differently, but for me, I took the time and put the song into perspective and I'm turning a negative into a positive."

Instead, K.R.I.T. directs his wrath at the machinations of a music industry that routinely pits performers against each other. He sublimely delivers his "Olympus" rhyme with bite, a statement of resistance against the vicissitudes of hip-hop.

"I ain't drawn to all this propaganda," K.R.I.T. rhymes on "Olympus," "rap s— about as real as Santa."

To the Cliffs of

Memoir. Cary Elwes takes fans behind the scenes of the making of the cult classic "The Princess Bride."

For a certain subset of the population, the phrase "as you wish" has some pretty magical connotations. It's the coded phrase Wesley says to Buttercup throughout "The Princess Bride" that she eventually realizes is his way of telling her he loves her. It's also the title of a new memoir by Cary Elwes, who played Wesley in the film, about the making of the film. (The full title is "As You Wish: Inconceivable Tales from the Making of 'The Princess Bride.'")

It's not just Elwes' memories in the book, though. There are interviews with almost everyone involved in making the movie, from screenwriter William Goldman to director Rob Reiner to Buttercup herself, Robin Wright.

"I can't take complete credit for this book," admits Elwes. "I did get the rest of the cast to share their experiences."

The book is full of trivia about the making of the movie, like how Elwes broke his toe trying to drive Andre the Giant's four-wheeler — and then, concerned he'd make director Rob Reiner so angry that he'd be recast, continued trying to film.

The injury was something of a serious concern. He and Mandy Patinkin spent months learning how to fence, because Goldman had included in the script that the Wesley/Inigo Montoya battle should be the "greatest swordfight in modern times." Whether it was or not is, of course, up to the viewer, but Patinkin's interview about filming the big scene reminded Elwes of something he'd forgotten.

Insanity and back

See Elwes in person on Oct. 13 at Barnes and Noble at 33 E. 17th St. at 7 p.m. / MIRANDA PENN TURIN

"Mandy reminded me that we had to change some of the fight sequence at the last second because it didn't work for the camera angle that Rob had chosen," says Elwes. Reiner gave them something like 20 minutes to fix it (the battle they'd rehearsed for three months) and "we went and re-choreographed a whole section on the stairs, and got it and did it right in the first take, which I'd forgotten about," says Elwes.

The experience all around felt almost like "theater camp," a mood set by Reiner himself. "He set the tone by being so fun, so nurturing and being an actor himself," says Elwes.

Elwes was inspired to put the book together after the cast reunited for the film's 25th anniversary at Lincoln Center, which didn't give him quite enough time to share all of his stories, but was a reminder of how much fan interest there is in any hint of trivia about "The Princess Bride." "We all get asked ... by fans what it was like all the time," Elwes says. "I thought now is a good time before my memory starts to fail to try and jot it all down and share it with the fans."

Vacay. Find out which tourist clichés you're guilty of — and how to pass for a local.

RACHEL VIGODA
@rachelatmetro
rachel.vigoda@metro.us

Layering a large-lensed Nikon over your Hawaiian shirt is a dead giveaway you're not from around these parts — but it's not the only sign you're a tourist. Even if you think you're blending in, the locals know better. Priceline.com took a look at what lets everyone know you're just visiting via a study conducted by Edelman Berland research. The study surveyed travelers as well as locals who have lived in a major U.S. city for at least five years, from New York to San Francisco. Here are the highlights of the first Tourist Report Card from Priceline.com.

What to wear

- The biggest tourist giveaway, according to more than half of the locals, is people wearing cameras around their necks and taking pictures of everything.
- Locals voted that the ugliest tourist accessory is socks and sandals (42 percent), followed by the fanny pack (21 percent).
- But almost 60 percent of tourists say they try to avoid wearing typical tourist gear.

Getting around

- One in 4 tourists prefers to use a pocket foldout map when traveling, and about three in seven still use a printout map from an Internet source such as MapQuest.
- More than half of the tourists surveyed equate blending in successfully with learning to navigate public transportation.
- About 63 percent of tourists have asked a local for directions.

Taking a selfie in the street definitely makes you look like a tourist. / DIGITAL VISION

According to the study, tourists are looking to get it on. Almost 40 percent of singletons surveyed said they would love to have a fling with a local. / PHOTODISC

Sex

- More than 1 in 3 single tourists say they would love to have a fling with a local while on vacation.
- Nearly 1 in 5 would put those thoughts into action, actually trying to find a one-night hookup.
- More than 1 in 3 tourists have become smitten over a foreigner with an accent.

Top 3 tourist clichés

63%

Ask a local for directions

54%

Eat at a chain franchise

49%

Stop in the middle of the street to take a picture

Top 5

Ways to blend in a new city

- 1 Order local dishes and drinks
- 2 Travel by public transportation.
- 3 Avoid tourist gear, such as fanny packs, water bottle holsters and local city T-shirts.
- 4 Learn and use local phrases and expressions.
- 5 Befriend the locals.

A sneaky way to serve kids fruits and veggies

Healthy and happy.

A new book serves up healthy smoothie recipes for kids.

If you want your kids to eat their fruits and vegetables, it all comes down to how you market and present 'em. Nutritionist and TV presenter for U.K.'s Living Health Channel Amanda Cross has discovered a way to get kids to devour the produce aisle's finest: Serve them in smoothie form.

Her new book, "My First Juices & Smoothies," features more than 60 recipes to ensure that your kids get their needed servings of fruits and vegetables. The best part is that these smoothies are even appealing to adults. Not only are the ingredients simple (peaches, grapes, oranges), the bright colors and creative names make them fun.

Sweet and Sour combines mango, oranges, cranberries and honey, giving the drink a sunset hue. Some of the drinks with greens look like they glow.

At right is the recipe for Cross' Traffic Light smoothie.

Recipe

Traffic Light

Ingredients:

- 3 kiwifruits
- 2/3 cup tangy flavored yogurt, such as lemon or orange
- 1 small mango
- 2 tablespoons orange or apple juice
- 1-2 teaspoons honey

Directions:

1 Peel and coarsely chop the kiwifruits, then blend in a blender until smooth.

2 Spoon the kiwi mixture into two tall glasses. Top each glass with a spoonful of yogurt, spreading the yogurt all the way to the sides of the glasses.

3 Peel the mango, remove the pit and chop the flesh accordingly. Blend the mango to a puree with the orange or apple juice and spoon into the glasses. Top with another layer of yogurt.

4 Blend the raspberries and push through a strainer over a bowl to extract the seeds. Check their sweetness. You might need to add a little honey if they're sharp.

5 Spoon the raspberry puree into the glasses.

The essentials

A good diet has to include:

- Protein to build hormones, found in eggs and meat
- Essential fatty acids for hormone production, a healthy immune system and cell membranes for eggs and sperm come from oily fish, nuts and seeds
- Slow-release carbohydrates for energy, from any brown cereals
- 8 vitamins and folic acid for cell division, which come from green vegetables

Your fertility. A celebrity baby guru explains what goes into a healthy pregnancy.

You both are what you eat

"The maturing egg, sperm, endometrium (womb lining) and fetus depend upon nutrients for development. If the diet contains too many environmental endocrine-disrupting chemicals (like trans fats, refined sugars or excess additives) — or if it's depleted of nutrients altogether — then fertility can be significantly affected.

"Protein, fats and carbohydrates are needed for the healthy reproduction of sperm, eggs and the embryo. Fruit and vegetables are necessary to protect against free radical damage to which eggs and sperm are sensitive."

Weight matters

"Being underweight or overweight both cause issues. Some women who are underweight have given up completely on carbohydrates, but this is not the way to go. You need carbs for energy, and many women are overwhelmed by how they crave carbs in early pregnancy.

"Being underweight can affect your health and fertility just as much as being overweight."

Science isn't up for debate

It's been clearly established that industrial emissions are causing widespread disruption to the planet's climate. Because of how ungodly complex climate and weather naturally are, plus our continual pumping of more emissions into the atmosphere, our understanding of how those disruptions play out is constantly evolving. Plus, these disruptions are growing in frequency and intensity, making it harder to project what's coming. No more nonsense about the science not being settled; the real question is whether we are going to actually survive it.

JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA EMAIL

Newspapers receive letters expressing various beliefs that some people hold tightly to, despite a consensus among nonfanatics that there is no empirical support for the claims and abundant evidence against them. It's not feasible to publish every loony conspiracy theory in the world, but I believe that the principle of free speech demands that these opinions receive space in proportion to their political significance. Climate-change denialism has no merit, but many adherents. News should be presented factually. But on the letters page, give the crackpots their voice.

Rolle: NFC East starting to turn in Giants' favor

NFL. The Giants are starting to feel confident after winning three straight games.

The Giants heard all of the criticism after an 0-2 start, but that doesn't mean the players bought into the fatalism.

"I never doubt," said safety Antrel Rolle. "We always expected to be [over .500]. I never really imagined that we'd be fighting just to get over .500, to be honest with you. But we expected to be [in the division hunt]. We're just trying to win every game and keep building from

The jury is still out on how much time Rashad Jennings will miss due to a knee sprain, but he will not need surgery.

- "I just looked at [the doctor] and said, 'Look, surgery or no surgery? No surgery? See you later,'" Jennings said.

this point."

But Rolle scoffed at the idea the Eagles matchup this week is a statement game — a way to show the league the Giants (3-2) are back to being serious contenders.

"Every game for us is a statement game. This game is just bigger because it's a divisional game against a good football team," Rolle said. "They're playing very well right now, so as far as a statement game, every game for us is a must-win."

The Giants had only three penalties on Sunday, which proved to Eli Manning that major strides are being made in focus and execution. Their season-opening shellacking is far in the team's rearview mirror.

"We just need to continue to keep playing smart football, can't turn the ball over [and play] mistake-free football," said Manning.

Rolle had a hint of glee in the fact that the Giants have made the preseason prognosticators eat their words.

"We didn't get a lot of credit this preseason in our division. It seemed like everybody had picked everyone but us," said Rolle. "But now I think the table is starting to turn a little bit in our division."

New-look Isles end era in Nassau

NHL season preview. The Islanders enter a final season on Long Island with an overhauled roster.

The Islanders' 2013-14 season has been lost to time. Just ask Josh Bailey.

"Last year is last year," Bailey told Metro New York in a phone interview during training camp. "We're looking forward to this year."

And with good reason. The Islanders plummeted from eighth in the Eastern Conference in the lockout-shortened 2013 season to 14th with a 34-37-11 season. But general manager Garth Snow was as active as any executive in the league during the offseason, beginning with the June trades for the negotiating rights to goaltender Jaroslav Halak and defenseman Dan Boyle. While Boyle passed on a deal, Halak agreed to a four-year, $18 million offer to be a stabilizing presence in net.

Landing Halak would be a harbinger of things to come.

At the draft, Snow used the fifth overall pick to select 18-year-old Oshawa Generals left wing Michael Dal Colle, then traded back into the first round to nab Windsor Spitfires right wing Josh Ho-Sang with the 28th overall pick. A free agency spending spree landed Snow reserve goaltender Chad Johnson, and top 6 wingers Mikhail Grabovski and Nikolai Kulemin. The makeover was completed Saturday with the acquisitions of defensemen Johnny Boychuk and

Josh Bailey was fourth on the team with 30 assists last season. / GETTY IMAGES

30

It has been exactly 30 seasons since the Islanders last won the Stanley Cup, the last of four straight from 1980 to 1983.

Nick Leddy from Boston and Chicago, respectively.

To land Boychuk and Leddy — Snow called the duo "top 4 defensemen" after the trades were announced — the Islanders sent second-round picks in 2015 and 2016, and a conditional third-round pick to Boston. Chicago received depth defenseman T.J. Brennan, and prospects Ville Pokka and Anders Nilsson.

"It was an opportunity to upgrade our defense," Snow said. "[The trades are] not a situation where [both deals] came out of nowhere. We had been communicating with both teams for a period of time and it all came to fruition."

The Islanders feel they have the pieces in place to make the franchise's last season at Nassau Coliseum a special one. They

"It is what it is," Bailey said. "Obviously there's a lot of great history and tradition in the arena. We want to finish on a strong note and make the last year here a success. Obviously that [provides] a lot of motivation."
